Fifth Loan Oct. 18; Require $1,200,000,000

Ottawa, Sept. 7.—The Fifth Victory Loan campaign will open Oct. 18 with a minimum cash objective of $1,200,000,000—the largest ever set for any Victory Loan—it was announced Tuesday.

The objective in the Fourth Victory Loan last spring was $1,100,000,000 and, like all previous war loans, it was heavily oversubscribed.

Besides the cash objective of $1,200,000,000, holders of Dominion of Canada five percent bonds and Dominion of Canada four percent bonds due Oct. 15, 1945, and called for payment next Oct. 15 will be given an opportunity to convert their holdings of these issues into Fifth Victory Loan bonds.

But these conversions will not be applied against national and local cash objectives, since the $1,200,000,000 figure is for "new" money only.

The minimum cash objective will be divided as follows: $225,000,000 from individuals, and $975,000,000 from "special names" which comprise business firms and corporations for the most part.

ISLEY'S STATEMENT

In announcing the new campaign for funds to carry on the war, Finance Minister Isley said: "While the objective is the largest ever set for any Victory Loan, I am confident that it is well within the capacity of the Canadian people to achieve this goal."

"The increase in the objective for the Fifth Victory Loan indicates the need to obtain a maximum possible investment from all Canadians."

"Although recent war news has been extremely favorable I am sure that Canadians know that a severe and costly struggle is ahead. Our fighting forces are at full grips with the enemy and I am confident that Canadians at home will lend their full support by the purchase of Canada's Fifth Victory Loan bonds."

Alberta's Share $37,000,000

Calgary, Sept. 7.—F. E. Osborne chairman of the National War Finance committee for Alberta, issued the following statement on the Fifth Victory Loan:

"The announcement by the minister of finance, Hon. J. L. Isley, of the amount and date of the Fifth Victory loan serves to emphasize to civilians on the home front, the positive part they are called upon to play in our country's accelerated war program. Twelve hundred million dollars as asked for by the minister as the minimum amount required means that Albertans are being asked to subscribe thirty seven million dollars, four million more than the objective of the Fourth Victory Loan, but two million dollars less than we invested in that loan."

"I doubt if we as a province will be satisfied with an achievement less than forty million dollars which should become our unofficial objective. The official slogan will be "Speed to Victory," and investors (please note that word, for subscriptions are definitely not a gift) will surely be doing just that, since the volume of replacements of personnel and material is contingent upon the money which we as loyal citizens of Canada place at the disposal of our national government."

Jean Claes, Local Oldtimer, Leaves Pass For Pacific Coast

Came to Coleman in 1909; Ill Health Causes Him to Move to Coast.

Coleman and the Crows Nest Pass lost another of its real oldtimers last Friday when Jean Claes left to seek a new home at the Pacific coast. He has been in ill health for some time and last July he and Mrs. Claes spent a month's vacation at the coast. While there he improved in health but upon returning home and starting to work he again felt unwell. On Friday he left by train for Vancouver and will look around preparatory to buying some land where he may settle down. Mrs. Claes is at present residing at her West Coleman home.

Jean came to Coleman in 1909 direct from Belgium. He secured employment with the then Mc-Gillivray Creek Coal Co. and worked on building its tipple. He was in the gang that filled the first box car with coal, using wheel barrows on the job. He worked for nine months at Maple Leaf and following that entered the employ of International with whom he worked for ten years. In 1920 he entered the employ of McGillivray Creek and had remained there up to last week.

His only hobby has been the raising and flying of racing pigeons and has been a member of the Coleman Homing Society since its organization many years ago. Last week he resigned as its president, a position held during the past few years.

His quiet and unassuming nature has won him many friends who sincerely wish him improved health at the Pacific coast.

Sirs: Received cigarettes, many thanks, W. Cieslak.

Dear Sirs: Received another lot of cigarettes and was sure glad to get them. Everything over here doing fine. Have not seen any of the Coleman lads for over two months.—Pete Smith.

Dear Comrades: Received your usual monthly gift and thanks a million, I haven't met anybody from home lately but I know where a lot of them are stationed.—L. A. Caroe.

Excitement Reigns Over Town When News of Italy's Capitulation Received; Bells Ring, Whistles Blow

"Should Be a Radio in Every Store" Stated Only Lady When Commenting On News; Saving of Many Lives Upmost in People's Minds.

A wave of excitement reigned over Coleman Wednesday morning when the first news flashes revealed the unconditional surrender of Italy to the Allied Nations. It became the subject of conversation among small groups of people on the street and in the stores. Smiling faces told of the delight with which the news was being received. One overjoyed lady who seemingly wanted the radio flashes wherever she went on main street, declared that "there should be a radio in every store."

The local citizens seemed to be greatly relieved that thousands of young lives had been saved by Italy's capitulation. The fact that the Allies may secure the Italian fleet, air bases, etc., was second in importance to the fact that many Allied soldiers' lives would be saved.

Many were of the opinion that since Italy was removed from the list of aggressors Hitler would be hard pressed to police the entire European continent and still maintain strong fighting forces in Russia and invasion points on the western front. According to our local war experts the Balkans with their strong guerrilla forces would prove the second weakest link in the Axis' chain.

Italy's fall was good news to all and led to much speculation.

Upon the stroke of 5 p.m. Wednesday, church bells, the fire bell and mine whistles were sent into action to celebrate the downfall of Italy. It was a milestone in the progress of this world conflict and one worthy of being hailed with delight.

BRITISH NAVAL AIR GUNNERS AT HQ STATION WAIT CALL TO ACTION

The British Royal Naval Air Station, "HMS Sparrowhawk," is the HQ of the biggest existing squadron to which catapult aircraft in British warships belong. These are mostly Walrus seaplanes, but the naval airmen must be familiar with a dozen other varieties—Skuas, Rocs, Fulmars and Swordfish. Many Swordfish torpedo attacks have been launched against enemy ships, by RNV's, usually about 22 years of age, who, however, are often veterans of many a daring attack on enemy craft. There is a constant flow of aircraft to and from the ship. Here the Fleet ships receive their aerial replacements, send their aircraft for repair, and exchange personnel. Picture shows air gunners seated on the nose of a "Walrus" aircraft.

ST. ALBAN'S HONOR ROLL

The Honor Roll for St. Alban's church is now being compiled. It is hoped to include the names of all members of the congregation serving in any branch of the war services. The Rector would appreciate it if relatives and friends of those serving would see that their names are handed in to Mr. Frank Graham without delay, as it is hoped to have the Honor Roll dedicated at an early date.

Local Man In Bad Collision On Monday Evening

Two Blairmore Youths Knocked From Motor Cycle; One Suffered Badly Fractured Leg; Mike Pardell Given Fourteen Days.

Mike Pardell, about 50 years, is today serving fourteen days prison term in Lethbridge jail as the result of a bad smashup in which he was involved on Monday evening in the vicinity of Blairmore.

He allegedly, while under the influence of liquor, drove his car into a motor cycle on which rode two young Blairmore men, Milo Marcial and Joe Rossi, both employees of Charles Sartoris.

The young men were thrown heavily from their machine and Marcial was the most seriously injured when examination revealed that he suffered from a leg fractured in three places. Rossi suffered shock and body cuts.

Appearing before Magistrate Gresham on Tuesday Pardell was found guilty of reckless driving and sentenced to fourteen days in Lethbridge jail.

Youths Steal From Local Gardens

It is disgusting and sometimes heart-breaking to find out how ill-mannered and thoughtless some of our local youths are. For instance a local gardener had given long hours of labor and spent several dollars on his garden and saw the vegetables grow to the point where he would soon be able to make use of them. He visited the Bellevue show on Monday afternoon and upon returning home went into his garden to compare his vegetables with those at the show.

Havoc met his eyes. Many vegetables had been torn from the ground, damage was everywhere. Young thieves had been at work during his absence. Local gardeners can well sympathize with him. Here was a season's work completely ruined. His garden in which he had taken such pride was wrecked.

It is too bad these garden thieves could not be apprehended. They ought to be taught a lesson. It requires many hours of toil and patience to bring a garden to fruitful maturity and the gardener should be protected against thoughtless youths.

Church Congregation Welcomes New Minister And Wife

Induction Service Presided Over By Rev. E. B. Arrol and Rev. W. H. Irwin.

St. Paul's United church congregation gathered at the church on Friday evening, Sept. 3, to welcome the newly arrived Rev. G. A. Ketylis and Mrs. Ketylis.

The services were in charge of the Rev. E. B. Arrol, of Blairmore, and Rev. Wm. Irwin, of Bellevue. The latter gave a very interesting sermon to the congregation, while Rev. Arrol presided over the induction service.

After the services Mr. Ketylis was presented with a lovely bouquet of flowers by the young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dickieson on behalf of the congregation. The congregation was then introduced to their new minister and his wife, after which all gathered in the church club room where the Ladies' Aid served tea and a light lunch.

Italian Citizens Delighted At Italy's Withdrawal

Had Been Strongly Opposed to Mussolini's Dictatorial Rule; Wonder Why Badoglio Waited So Long.

Coleman's Italian citizens heard of Italy's capitulation on Wednesday morning with a great deal of delight, according to a survey made by The Journal on Wednesday afternoon.

One prominent Italian citizen smiled broadly when interviewed and stated it was the best thing Italy could have done. "You know," he said, "the fellows living around here are very well pleased that Italy has capitulated. The Italians did not want this war, but what can you do when you have a man like Mussolini ordering you to do this and that and using force to make you do what you are told. When Badoglio took over we thought Italy would quit then and have often wondered what kept him from taking Italy out of the war. Lots of my neighbors have brothers and sisters in Italy. Sure, we are glad Italy is out, very glad."

Local Exhibitors Win Prizes At Bellevue Show

Mrs. W. Antle, Mr. and Mrs. D. Hoyle and Mr. Neil Fleming Sr. Big Winners.

Another successful Bellevue horticultural show has passed into history and several local citizens had the honor of winning prizes against some keen opposition.

The show, held on Labor Day at the Bellevue arena, had quite a large number of excellent exhibits in numerous events. The flowers especially were really beautiful and drew the praise of all who saw them. Neil Fleming sr., of West Coleman, had several entries in the gladioli and rose classes and gained a first and second for his gladioli, and a third for his roses. Neil is highly pleased with his showing and plans on doing better next year.

Coleman bld its own in handwork classes and Mrs. W. Antle and Mr. and Mrs. D. Hoyle gained a large number of prizes.

Mrs. Antle gained a first for her table centre piece, second for a table cloth, third for a table centre, second for pillow cases, third for a bedroom dresser set and first for a buffet set. Her work was really something to be admired and must have taken her many hours of delicate workmanship.

Mrs. Hoyle won second for a table runner, which was of beautiful design. Mr. Hoyle won first for a bedspread and second for a cushion. In the general showwork, Mr. Hoyle stood alone and his ash tray and cigarette stand drew general praise. The latter two items were the only ones entered in their class, but despite this fact, they were beautiful pieces of workmanship and it would have taken real competition to have taken the prizes away from him.

To see Coleman entries competing against outside opposition gives the show added interest from a local standpoint and President Wm. Kerr extends a hearty welcome to other Coleman gardeners and fancy work experts to bring in as many entries as they wish next year.

A pansy expert from Michel, a Mr. Robertson by name, won several prizes in the pansy classes. The bulk of the prizes, however, went to Bellevue exhibitors, who form the backbone of the show and are to be congratulated in maintaining such a fine exhibition in their town.

The World Of Tomorrow

THE URGENT NEEDS of a world at war tend to bring about great scientific, economic and social improvements which might take many years to develop under normal, peace-time conditions, and the effects of these changes on our daily lives and on the whole future of civilization may be greater than is generally realized at this time. It is not in the realm of prophecy to sketch the bold outlines of what our world may be like after the war, for they have already been traced. Developments which have taken place since the beginning of the war make the world as it was in 1939, antiquated from many viewpoints, and projects which would then have appeared fantastic are now being accomplished to meet the requirements of war. Because the majority of the new discoveries are used solely for military purposes at present, and because many are being kept secret from the enemy, it is possible to predict only a few of the many innovations which civilians will enjoy in the post-war world.

New Plastics Are Versatile

More than a century was required to bring the crude rubber production of the world up to a million tons a year. The United Nations, chiefly Canada and the United States, are now planning to produce that quantity of synthetic rubber after only two years. In the realm of plastics, sensational developments have taken place since the beginning of the war. In the future the newest and most versatile of plastics will be available on a scale never dreamed of before. We are told that there will be glass which is unbreakable, glass which will float, and wood which will compete with structural metals. Hosiery, manufactured from air, water and coal, a wonder of the pre-war days, is only a forerunner of many new products from the same source, ranging from shoes which contain no leather and window screens which contain no wire, to machinery bearings which contain no metal. Fuels, metals, and plastics are now ready to finish the revolution in transportation started early in the century. Light, low priced cars will be manufactured with many of the mechanical improvements developed for wartime uses, and it is predicted that they will travel many more miles to a gallon of fuel than the cars of the present day.

Housing To Be Much Improved

The war has driven home to us the need for wide-reaching changes in our present housing system. Lack of vision and initiative in home building is apparent in almost every Canadian community, where crowded and undesirable housing conditions have presented increasingly difficult problems. Engineers and scientists have been studying this situation, and already in some places on this continent pre-fabricated homes, made from the newest types of materials, including plastics, plywood, fire-resistant wood, and synthetic finishes of lasting durability are being produced. It is said that stainless steel may be the roofing of the future and that lightning may be governed by electric "eyes", sensitive to outside variations in daylight, and that air conditioning will be improved in many ways. These new homes will be inexpensive according to present standards, and they will be moveable. These are only a few of the material improvements which man may enjoy after the war, and many other inventions and discoveries, developed for use in combat, will be turned to peacetime uses in the world of tomorrow.

All-Bran Jammies

1 1/2 cups sifted flour
2 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
1/4 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt

1/4 cup All-Bran
1/4 cup shortening
1/2 cup milk
1/2 cup raspberry jam

Sift flour, baking powder, sugar and salt together; add All-Bran. Cut in shortening until mixture is like coarse cornmeal. Add milk and mix just until dry and liquid ingredients are combined. Turn onto floured board, knead lightly a few seconds; roll into oblong about 12 x 7 inches and 1/4-inch thick. Spread jam over dough and roll like jelly roll beginning at long side. Slice in about 1-inch slices and place cut side down on greased baking sheet or in large muffin pans. Bake in moderately hot oven (425 degrees F.) 18 to 20 minutes. Serve warm with thin cream.

THE REAL THING

Now somebody is going to make beefsteak out of air, water, molasses, yeast and ammonia. For the last quarter of a century somebody has bobbed up at intervals who was going to feed us on tablets and save all the dishwashing. We think we'll stick to our beefsteak on the hoof as long as it lasts and as long as our coupons hold out—Lethbridge Herald.

Angry Resident—Didn't I tell you to come over and repair my door bell yesterday morning?

Angry Resident—Then why didn't you go to work?

Mechanic—Well, sir, you see, I rang your door bell for ten minutes and got no answer, so I guessed you were all out.

Patient—I am troubled with alarming dreams. Last night I saw my deceased father.

Doctor—What did you eat before retiring.

Patient—Half a mince pie.

Doctor—Well, if you had eaten a whole pie, it is probable you would have seen your grandfather.

Johnny had been thinking, and, turning to his dad, said: "What are our ancestors, daddy?" To which the father answered: "Well, son, I'm one of your ancestors, and your grandfather's another." "But why do people brag about them, daddy?" asked Johnny, innocently.

CANADIAN PRESS NEWS

Weekly Paper For Overseas Servicemen Supplies News From Home.

Majority of Canada's overseas servicemen will give up their paper, more, for a newsy letter from home. Many of the lads and some of the lassies have been overseas nearly four years now and they are finding news as important to the full flavor of service life as cream is to strawberries.

The Canadian Press News, weekly newspaper for the overseas forces, was established at instance of the Dominion Government to meet the demand for home news, and general content of the paper is dictated, through questionnaires, by service readers whose suggestions have meant inclusion of news pictures, pin-up girls, cartoons, feature columns and, just recently, a chess corner.

Cost of production is paid by the Government, but the paper, published in London, England, is edited solely by The Canadian Press, which supplies its news free. News is supplied also for editors in Newfoundland and the Mediterranean war zone.

The West has a personal interest in the production of this newspaper. Scott Young of Glenboro, Man., started cabling copy for the original four-pager in the days when headings, type-size and all details were transmitted from this side. At London, Winnipeg-born Alan Randal, sorted out the cables and put them in form for the battle with the hide-bound English printers who hated to do anything they hadn't done before. The early days were tough.

Six months after the start, Young went to England to handle the production end and was replaced by another Winnipegger, Charles Edwards, who also took the only national daily sports column (CP's Sport Snapshots) which Young had most popular feature. The boys skip the news of major political or economic developments to read first that Joe Glitz' sow has another litter of pigs at Plum Hollow or that four years north of Appleby Corners is fencing his back quarter section.

First issues devoted the front page to general news, with one page of home news in English, one of Province of Quebec news in French and one page of sport.

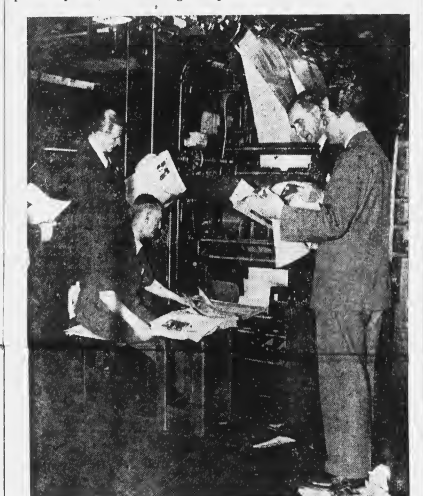

A forward step was taken Dec. 10 when the paper was increased to eight pages. Two pages of pictures were added with an extra page of general news and a second sport page. Guest columns by outstanding Canadian sports writers became a weekly feature.

Newspaper members of The Canadian Press loaned their picture engravings. Full pages of pictures were made up in Toronto, and sent to London in page form by air through an arrangement with the Royal Air Force ferry command.

In January, replies to a questionnaire expressed approval of the larger paper but there were requests for a greater number of home-town items, inclusion of news about Canadians in the services overseas, and use of cartoons.

To make room for more local news and the new features, one page of pictures was dropped. Cartoons were supplied through the courtesy of Canadian publications. In alternate weeks the paper carried two pages of home-town news or one page of home-town items and a page of service news.

Another questionnaire established the popularity of the new features and there was demand for still more local news. A humor column and more cartoons were suggested. Replies recommended reduction in the been writing. Now the copy for The CP News is marshalled at Toronto, cabled and mailed. Young makes it for size, selects pictures, writes headings and generally does a news desk job.

Evolution of The CP News to its present size was rapid. First published May 1, 1942, the paper has expanded from four unillustrated, four-column pages to an eight-page tabloid, its six-column pages enlivened by pictures and other features. Lord Beaverbrook's Evening Standard Publishing Company does the printing.

There's a story behind Beaverbrook's interest in a publication for Canadian forces. The Canadian-born publisher was responsible for establishing the "Canadian Daily Record", issued during the First Great War by the Canadian War Records Office to all units of Canada's overseas military forces.

That paper was published from Jan. 16, 1917, to July 31, 1919, and, in its final issue, Beaverbrook wrote: "The venture was a curious experiment justified by its success. For the first time a newspaper has been brought into existence to give the army at the front the news of its folks at home instead of telling the people the news of the army..."

"Canada was first in the world because she was most prompt to realize that in modern wars waged by whole nations the Army and the People are one, and that each needs news of the other..."

Speaking with this background of experience, Beaverbrook terms The CP News "a very fine production," adding: "The cable service is a credit to the newspaper's direction and a pattern for the guidance of those who manage overseas publications for the troops."

Primarily, the paper is designed to give the overseas forces a summary of the week's home news in two categories—general news of Canada and items of purely home-town interest. These latter are gathered from all sections of Canada and grouped under five headings—Maritime, Quebec, Ontario, The Prairies and British Columbia.

Replies to questionnaires show that the home-town items are the paper's

IMMUNIZATION WEEK

National Immunization Week, during which Canadian parents will be urged to avail themselves of measures to protect their children against dangerous communicable diseases, will be held November 14 to 20. The Health League of Canada has announced. The nation-wide health education effort is being sponsored by the Health League, in co-operation with the provincial departments of public health.

Attention will be directed specially to the importance of immunizing children for diphtheria, smallpox and whooping cough, which continue to take a needless and preventable toll of child life and health in Canada. In at least two of the provinces preventive measures for scarlet fever also will be emphasized.

National Immunization Week will be a development from National Toxoid Week, held last year, when immunization for diphtheria alone was urged. There were almost 3,000 cases of diphtheria in Canada last year, and while mortality from the disease has been reduced with the use of anti-toxin, many children recover with complications, such as heart damage, the league points out.

Public health authorities fear that if a large proportion of the growing generation of children are not vaccinated, an epidemic might spread rapidly, with disastrous results. Canada's present freedom from the disease is no justification for relaxing vigilance it has been stressed.

Whooping cough is an important cause of child death and ill-health, which is not sufficiently appreciated, the league said.

Canadian parents will be warned to have immunization done by their family physicians or local health departments. The only reason why these communicable diseases do not cause widespread suffering on the scale of past experience is that prudent parents have protected their children against them, the league stated.

LIVESTOCK MEN HAVE URGED GOVERNMENT TO ESTABLISH A FLOOR PRICE ON ALL CATTLE

WINNIPEG.—The federal government has been asked to establish floor prices on all classes of cattle and to provide an organization to purchase surplus cattle for export to the United States in order to eliminate a threatened crisis in the livestock marketing this fall.

Resolutions urging these measures were placed before the government in Ottawa by Walter C. Thomson, K.C., of Toronto, representing western livestock producers, shippers and dealers. Mr. Thomson is counsel for the Canadian Livestock Sales Agencies Limited.

The texts of the resolutions were adopted at a meeting of livestock men here, recommending:

That floor prices be established on all classes of cattle for the duration of the war and two years thereafter;

That when and at such times as the bid falls below the floor prices, the government shall purchase all surplus cattle remaining upon the market at floor prices, in a similar manner to the operation of the food corporation during the period July 1 to Aug. 18, 1942;

That the government release sufficient skilled labor from any available source to relieve the present very acute shortage of workers in the packing industry; and

That the government extend financial assistance to enable the feeder to purchase cattle for feeder purposes.

The livestock men fear that unless government action is taken there will be a glut of cattle on western markets this autumn.

They reported that a heavy run of cattle and hogs would overtax killing facilities of packing plants, because of the labor shortage. Other factors include decreased demand from eastern feeders because of short crops in Ontario; the cutting off of shipments to United States; and the increased cattle and hog production on Canadian farms.

It has been indicated eastern feeders' purchases of western stocker cattle will be 40 per cent. less than in normal years because of poor coarse grains crop in Ontario.

While the suggestions are being considered, officials said that in effect a price floor already exists. Wholesale meat prices are set by order and these prices are reflected in live cattle values.

CANADA'S HUGE GRAIN RESERVE WILL BE NEEDED FOR EXPECTED DEMAND FOR FEED GRAIN STOCKS

OTTAWA.—The agricultural supplies board, in a recent statement, served warning that Canada's immense grain stocks "probably will be none too great for safety in view of the anticipated need for animal and poultry feeds on this continent."

In a detailed survey of the feed situation, the board said it is vitally important that eastern Canadian farmers who expect to need grain for feeding purposes should not only place orders early but also be prepared to accept whatever kind of grain they can get—whether it be wheat, oats or barley—when they can get it.

The statement reviewed transportation difficulties and the immense demand for feed-grain stocks. It warned that protein feed ingredients definitely will be short.

Canadian feeders, while having the bulk of four mill by-products reserved for them, cannot count on getting all the millfeeds they want, and should use ground grains in their livestock rations when wheat millfeeds are not available in desired quantities, the board said.

One favorable factor in the feed situation, however, was the abundant supply of grass in eastern Canada, since a good grazing fall would ease the feed situation.

An immense demand for Canadian food products, both at home and from other United Nations, had brought agriculture into the classification of "war industries".

"Basic to the production of these needed supplies of animal and poultry products is the whole problem of adequate supplies of feed," said the board.

Fodder supplies for the coming season were adequate in most parts

WOMAN MEMBER

Australia Will Have At Least One And Maybe More

SYDNEY, Australia.—Excitement of the Australian federal election is almost over. The final results are not yet known but there is one feature already established that the commonwealth has never known before. There is certain to be at least one woman in parliament for the first time and there may be three or four.

In all, 23 women were candidates for the house of representatives or the senate. The one certain to go to the parliament house at Canberra is Dorothy Tangney, a teacher in western Australia. She will be a member of the Labor team her state is sending to the senate.

FINE ACHIEVEMENT

German Reconnaissance Plane Was Destroyed Over Britain

LONDON.—An anti-aircraft battery of three male gunners and three women brought down what is believed to be the first ME-109 reconnaissance plane destroyed over Britain. And they got it with a direct hit at 36,000 feet, officially described as "a remarkable achievement at such a terrific height."

The plane, a new type brought out by the Nazis, was escorted over England by two fighters.

TORONTO.—Selective service officials said that Ontario farmers are volunteering in substantial numbers to journey west and repay the 700-odd men from western Canada who came east earlier in the season to help harvest crops. W. M. Cockburn, of Newmarket, York county agricultural representative, said the westerners had helped save the day on many farms here.

The Flying Ambulance

Seen above is one of the giant twin-motored transport planes being used by the R.C.A.F. for casualty transportation. The machine is fitted to accommodate 18 stretchers and has all facilities necessary for work of this kind. Recently, a plane of this type was used to transport 11 R.C.A.F. casualties from the Hospital Ship at an Eastern Canadian port to Rockcliffe station hospital, near Ottawa. The ship carries trained medical personnel, usually a doctor and a nurse, and when not in use as an ambulance can be fitted for normal transport work in a very few hours. Here an ambulance is seen drawn up beside the open doors of the ship ready to rush the injured to hospital.

SPEARHEAD OF INVASION INTO SOUTHERN ITALY WELL EQUIPPED WITH MUNITIONS AND FIGHTERS

(By The Canadian Press)

The invasion spearhead ramming into southern Italy is forged with planes, tanks, ships and tough, battle-seasoned men 500,000 to 1,000,000 strong.

Their invasion spring board is one wrested from the enemy in one of the brilliant victories of the war, climaxed by a triumph in Tunisia that bled the enemy of ground and air strength.

In North Africa at the end of the Tunisian campaign, the Allies had at least 500,000 men—British and American—and thousands more Frenchmen rapidly being trained and equipped with the most modern armaments of war.

Among the forces at Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's disposal are hardened, battle-tested and victory-confident units: The British 8th and 1st armies; the United States 7th army corps, the Canadian 1st division and the Fighting French.

These were the men who pushed the Axis out of Africa, who met and bested some of the finest German troops and shattered—in all the African warfare—35 divisions of enemy troops.

In reserve during the Tunisian warfare, and now possibly destined to carry much of the weight of the assault after the first toe-holds are won by veteran troops, is the American 5th Army.

Activities, strength, and disposition of this army have been secrets jealously-kept, but it is known that the army was stationed in Morocco.

Convoy after convoy going from Britain and the United States to Africa brought armaments and probably troops to reinforce this army.

In Tunisia the Allies learned the vital lesson of fighting together in perfect co-ordination. Hundreds of thousands of troops gained battle-front experience. Armored units, airplanes and artillery were used in concert, supply services performed prodigious feats and increased their efficiency.

At the battle's end, the Allies had nearly 500,000 trained experienced men, and had accounted for 324,000 Axis troops—30,000 killed, 27,000 wounded and 267,000 captured, all this in Tunisia alone. The prisoners included 27 Axis generals, headed by Col. Gen. Jürgen von Arnim. The Axis had lost 1,700 planes. Three of Germany's best armored divisions had been destroyed, and so, too, in the long campaigns of Africa, had every Italian armored division that ever existed.

After the clean-up, the Allied troops rested and re-grouped and trained for the assault across the sea.

Britain and the United States re-armed the French, and in May five divisions—two armored and three infantry—were being armed in addition to a tank battalion, tank destroyer battalion, anti-aircraft battalion, and parachute regiment.

The French were to have an army of at least 11 divisions, men eager for revenge upon the Nazis. On May 26 it was announced that Gen. Henri Giraud's military forces in French Africa had received military supplies valued at $60,000,000 from the United States in April, bringing the total to date to $75,000,000.

The Allied troops in the final phase of the Tunisian drive numbered 17 divisions, commanded by Gen. Sir Harold Alexander, deputy commander in chief in charge of ground forces under Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower. Besides four American divisions, the 17 included three infantry divisions and an armored division of the British 1st Army, and eight divisions of Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's brilliant 8th Army which drove up from the south in Tunisia after chasing Field Marshal Erwin Rommel across and out of Africa.

Need For Air Force Recruits Is Now Urgent

OTTAWA.—Developments during the next few months, on the battle fronts and elsewhere, may largely determine the pattern for recruiting into the Canadian armed forces for the balance of the war.

While the army's need for men may be revised downward in the future, the needs of the air force, now urgent, are expected to continue unabated until the end of the war.

The R.C.A.F. in common with the army and navy, experienced a boom in recruiting recently following the lowering of the compulsory call-up age to 18. The boom in air force recruiting for a couple of weeks was such that some recruiting centres had difficulty keeping up with the applicants, but it has slackened off somewhat.

So far, however, the intake has not been sufficient to fill the shortage of aircrew in training schools, particularly marked in Ontario and in the Montreal and Vancouver areas but not so noticeable in the Maritime provinces or on the prairies.

The navy is the only one of the three services which has not yet had a recruiting problem. Naval officers anticipate they may have to think about one soon.

Last May Defence Minister Ralston placed the over-all manpower requirements of the three armed services at 177,000 for the 12 months starting April 1—100,000 for the army, 24,000 for the navy and 53,000 for the air force.

With no official figures available, the situation after five of the 12 months have passed appears to be that the army has made satisfactory progress towards getting its 100,000; the navy has kept up to its requirements; but the air force has not obtained enough recruits to keep its training establishments running at capacity.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

First Clean Break of The Axis

The Allied world heard with delight on Wednesday morning the news of the unconditional surrender of Italy, thus marking the first clean break of the once powerful Axis ranks. The Armistice between the Allies and Italy was signed on Sept. 3 and provides the answer to the questions asked regarding the 8th army's slow progress in Italy and Prime Minister Churchill's belated stay in Washington.

The Allies bid fair to get the Italian navy, which is still of formidable strength, to aid them in patrolling the Mediterranean and supplying Allied troops on the European mainland. It will also allow Britain to release some of her warships to aid in the Pacific war. Italian air fields will now be used by the Allies and the Italian coastal waters will no longer provide supply bases for the U-boats. The fact that the Allies will have to import many thousands of tons of food to feed the Italian populace is far outweighed by the advantages gained and above all that many thousands of young Allied soldiers' lives have been saved.

Where Were The Flags?

Listening to the news' broadcasts we heard of quickly arranged parades in the larger cities where flags would be flying and bands playing on Wednesday evening to celebrate Italy's fall. Coming back to the office we saw fit to put our flag up and noticed that of the Town hall swinging in the breeze, also the Coleman hotel flag. There was another little flag flying in town but it is more or less of a permanent fixture which will fly proudly till wind and rain have ripped it apart. Outside of these four flags there was not another one to be seen. Surely the downfall of one of the Axis partners called for a little flag waving. If the cities could have their parades Coleman could at least have stirred itself for a few minutes to put up a few flags to mark such a historic event. The Fall season has now arrived, isn't it about time Coleman woke up from its Summer slumber?

Jack Frost Writes Finis to Gardens

One cannot help pitying the ardent Pass gardener at this time of the year. He is to be seen in the early spring planting his flower bulbs and seeds and is full of ambition. The short growing season passes, he sees the fruits of his efforts in fine beautiful blooms and then, suddenly and quietly his arch enemy Jack Frost sneaks in by night and the morning sun sees the flowers lying limp and dead. The flower season is over. Such was the case on Tuesday and Wednesday of this week. The season had been late, the gardens were at their peak and on Wednesday morning very few flowers had survived the previous night's frost. Dahlias especially were hard hit. Only the very hardy plants still bloom. A sense of disappointment is with the gardener as he asks himself "what's the use" as he surveys the frost damage. Nevertheless he will again be out in the early spring with more flower bulbs and seeds to help beautify his home and town. Gardening is his hobby, he is powerless to resist it.

Politics And The Liberal Party

Our sympathy these days goes out to the Liberal party at Ottawa. It has a war on its hands in more ways than one. Canada's war effort of eleven million people has been held up in the Allied world as a model for all to follow. Its war effort has been magnificent. It is admired by all outside Canada. Inside, however, it is a different story. The key government ministers are so absorbed in winning this war that they are giving too little time to feeling the pulse of the country. Public discontent against high taxation, and ever tightening regulations are being used to advantage by political opposition to strengthen their national position and weaken the government's. Success of the Progressive-Conservatives and the C.C.F. tell their own story. Stern measures are needed to win this war just as surely as they will sweep the Liberal government out of power in the next federal elections. Mackenzie King must surely know this. We admire him, however, for "getting on with the war."

Baptisms

The Sacrament of Baptism was given the infant daughter of LAC and Mrs. Vernon Brown, nee Lorraine Rippon, on Wednesday, September 22, when she was given the names Verna Ann.

Fernand Jerry Pinotti, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Salvatore Pinotti, was given the Sacrament of Baptism on Wednesday, September 29, at St. Paul's United church, Rev. E. B. Arrol officiating.

FROST PLAYS HAVOC WITH GARDENS

Frost Tuesday and Wednesday mornings just about wrote finis to flower gardens this year. Ten degrees of frost were registered on Wednesday morning, which proved too severe for most flowers. The dahlias and glads suffered most. There's a chance the sweetpeas may make a comeback and a few of the small hardy plants. The season had been late in starting and most gardeners were at the peak of their bloom.

Some years ago a clothier in Paris had 49 coats he could not sell. He explained his predicament to a business acquaintance. "I have marked the over coats down 50 per cent," he said, "and still will not sell. What shall I do?"

"I will give you a list of provincial merchants," said the other. "Do this: Send seven overcoats to each, but send them an invoice for six only. They will think it is a mistake and will take advantage of it."

A week later the overcoat man rushed into his friend's store in a great rage. "Fine advice you gave me," he shouted. "Each one to whom I sent the seven coats, and invoiced only six, returned the six mentioned in the invoice and kept the extra one."—Wall Street Journal.

On Sept. 1 at 5 o'clock in the afternoon St. Alban's church was the scene of a pretty wedding when Helen, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Gate, became the bride of ACI William Shields, only son of Mr. and Mrs. James Shields. Rev. J. R. Hague officiated.

The bride entering the church on the arm of her father, looked graceful in a white figured sheer gown with sweetheart neckline and long finger-tip sleeves. She carried a white prayer book caught with white streamers and red roses. The groom's gift, an Air Force Locket, was the only ornament worn by the bride.

The maid of honor, Mrs. Hazel Jones, cousin of the bride, chose a pale blue sheer gown with soft blue hat touched with pink. Her bouquet was of pink and white carnations.

The wedding march was played by Mrs. William Jackson. During the signing of the register the organist played "I Love You Truly."

MISS BLANCHE MCINTYRE HONORED

Thursday evening, Sept. 2, a number of young people, representing the Coleman C.Y.O. and the girls' softball team, visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. McIntyre to honor their daughter, Blanche, prior to her departure for Holy Cross hospital, Calgary, which she will enter as a nurse-in-training.

A pleasant evening was spent with songs, games, etc. About eleven o'clock an enjoyable lunch was served by the visiting group. Following lunch Father Sullivan voicing the sentiments of those present, thanked Blanche for her untiring efforts as president of the local C.Y.O. and presented her with a beautiful fountain pen as a souvenir of her association with the young people. Father Anderson of Bellevue, and Father Leonard, of Blairmore, were welcome guests and in the course of short talks wished Blanche every success in her chosen vocation.

The gathering broke up about mid-night with all singing "For She's a Jolly Good Fellow."

THE CHARTERED BANKS of Canada keep abreast of the Dominion's expanding needs.

Six times since 1870 the Bank Act under which the Chartered Banks operate has been revised by parliament—six times in that period the activities of the banks have been carefully scrutinized by the people's representatives.

Every ten years the Bank Act has been thus revised. Each one of the six decennial revisions has contributed much to the evolution of the banking system to meet the expanding needs of a developing Dominion.

In 1934 the sixth revision of the Bank Act was made. Fifty members of the House of Commons made up the committee, which examined witnesses—among them bank officers, government officials and reformers—and studied exhibits filed by various individuals and organizations. Findings were submitted to the House, and later that year the Bank Act was revised in many important particulars.

Through democratic enquiry and decision, the Canadian banking system has grown and been adjusted to meet the needs of the people, providing a depository for savings and a sound basis for Canada's free economic development.

ISRAEL MARCHES TOWARD CANAAN

Golden text: Come thou with us, and we will do thee good. Numbers 10:29.

Lesson: Numbers 10:11-12:16. Devotional reading: Psalm 122.

Explanations and Comments
The Start from Sinai, Numbers 10:11-28. The account of the sojourn of the Israelites in the Wilderness of Sinai extends from Exodus 19:1 to Number 10:10. The object of their encampment there having been accomplished, the legislation of Sinai completed, the tabernacle rebuilt, and the religious and social life of the people organized, the time came to resume the onward march to the Promised Land. The Samaritan Bible introduces at this point the words which we find in Deuteronomy 1:6-8: The Lord our God spake unto us in Horeb, saying: Ye have dwelt long enough in this Mount, turn and take your journey.

It was the second month of the second year of their journeying, the twentieth day of the month, that the cloud was taken up from over the tabernacle of the testimony. The cloud was a symbol of God's presence: they were guided by the will of God. As to the nature of the cloud, who shall say?

It was an undisciplined rabble that had left Egypt, but now it has become an orderly host. Leaving the wilderness of Sinai they set forward "according to their journeys," that is, they advanced in an orderly procession, first the camp of Judah, and then the other tribes in the prescribed order, the ark and its furnishings in the care of those appointed for this service. Verses 12-27 give the details.

The cloud abode in the Wilderness of Paran, and there they rested (Numbers 12:16). They were on their way to the place of which the Lord said, "I will give it to you," unaware that more than 38 years would pass before their descendants, not themselves, would enter that Promised Land.

Circumstances of the Forward March, Numbers 10:33-36. The Egyptians and the Assyrians had arks, wooden chests, which were carried with great pomp in processions at national festivals. In their arks was some image of the deity they worshipped. The ark of the Israelites is called the ark of the covenant, because, instead of an image, it contained the covenant of the law, the tables of stone. The Israelites began their march, going a three days journey (which may have been one day and parts of two others) from Mount Sinai, "the Mount of Jehovah," and the ark was carried before them to seek out a resting-place for them. And the cloud of Jehovah was over them by day as they marched.

During the Battle of Britain one out of every six air-raid wardens was a woman.

Wooden Wheels Save Rubber

It was a bright lad in the Winnipeg shops of Trans-Canada Air Lines who thought of beating the tire shortage by using wooden wheels on cargo trucks. The carpenter shop went into production and the photograph, top, shows Carpenter John Pearson at work. The whirling saw cuts thin sheets of wood into semi-circles. These are fastened together on the wheel-frame and then the wooden tire is shaped on the lathe, a strip of canvas applied to it, and the whole thing painted. The finished job is shown below, being admired by one of T.C.A.'s plane cargo handlers. The trucks carry baggage, mail and express to the planes.

Demolition of the Eiffel Tower in Paris because of the urgent need for metal is being considered by the Germans, reports from Vichy said.

The Germans already are dismantling the steel tower at Lyons and the suspension bridge at Marseille.

DEVELOP YOUR VOICE AND JOIN IN THE FUN

Singing Is Fun

You miss so much if you can't join in the fun of singing with your friends. Lots of get-togethers feature singing, and if you don't sing, it isn't very much fun for you. You don't have to have a beautiful voice to be able to sing, because everyone can sing if they want to.

So many people are afraid to be heard because their voices are not exceptional. You don't have to be an opera singer to enjoy singing. Try it and find out!

Once you have lost your timidity of singing with others you will realize what enjoyment you have been missing.

Anyone who wants to sing can do so, provided, of course, that he really wants to, and has some musical sense, patience and a willingness to go slowly. Voice, in itself, is less important. Many a good singer has had nothing exceptional to offer in voice, but has trained it well.

This applies especially to the more serious singer. You, of course, may not want to try for the professional, but simply to develop your voice for your own enjoyment. Our 32-page booklet gives step-by-step exercises showing you how to use your voice and how to sing.

Send 15c in coins for your copy of "Teach Yourself To Sing" to Home Service Dept., Winnipeg Newspaper Union, 175 McDermott Ave. E., Winnipeg, Man. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

Twin Brothers Who Have Been War Guests Join R.C.A.F.

Nearly four years ago, when Donald and Stanley Rawlins were 14, they came to Canada as war guests from bombed London.

Now the twins are in the R.C.A.F., Stanley in air crew and Donald in a ground job because his eyes didn't measure up. They think their enlistment will help pay the debt they feel they owe Canada.

After they enlisted they received a cable from their family congratulating them on their decision.

A FOOT LESSON

It takes seven pounds of corn to make a pound of pork on the hoof. But you can make 238 muffins from seven pounds of corn. The lesson in this is that civilians must eat more grain and vegetable products, less meat. The idea is to substitute direct consumption of field crops for indirect consumption in the form of meat.—Vancouver Sun.

Railway Workers

Increasing Number Of Women Being Employed By The Canadian National

An increasing number of women are being employed by the Canadian National Railways in work previously regarded as the exclusive province of men. This is particularly true of the Motive Power and Car Equipment Department, as women are now making their appearance in company shops and roundhouses.

On the Western Region more than 80 women have taken over work formerly done by men and in nearly every case the women have taken over the position of a man who has joined the armed forces. In the mechanical department women are now installed at Regina, Saskatoon, Prince Rupert, Vancouver and Pacific. Most of the women are in and nearly as coach cleaners, although at Prince Rupert one woman is recorded as a laborer, while at Pacific, on the line between Jasper and Prince Rupert, two women have the unique duty of engine washmen.

In a report prepared for E. R. Battley, chief of motive power and car equipment, it is recorded that prior to the war 18 women were employed in the mechanical department. Now there are more than 350 carrying out duties previously handled by men.

Supervisory officials of the Canadian National Railways express satisfaction with the record of the women workers. One shop superintendent says: "These women have brought into the shop that additional bit of spick and span which is the hallmark of the trained and tidy housekeeper."

Specific instructions have been issued that no woman worker is to be asked to undertake laborious tasks, and it is stressed that all assignments are well within the physical capabilities of these recruits who have come into the railway service to replace men enlisted in the active forces. — Canadian National Railways Press Service.

London University

Summer School Is Organized And Has Dominion And Allied Personnel
London University has organized a co-educational summer school, chiefly to meet the leave problems of serving men and girls from overseas. The services of famous lecturers have been secured, and the syllabus—run on university lines, with lectures in the mornings and visits to such places as the Law Courts and the Royal Academy in the afternoons—has been planned to fit comfortably into the eight-days' leave period. Canadians, Americans, Poles and Czechs were among those who attended a recent course. Although the school is primarily for Dominion and Allied personnel, it is also open to service men and girls from the United Kingdom.

Beau Jonathan

by J. B. Ryan

CHAPTER I.

HIS grandfather's farm was only five miles beyond the village of Winnet and it was still early in the evening, but young Jonathan Hale knew that he would arrive home at the expected hour only at the cost of a thorough drenching. Already the black thunderheads rolling in from the west had darkened the sky, and jagged lightning foretold that the gathering storm was about to break. The British spring was late in that year of 1875, but already it held promise of full measure in lashing rain and electrical fireworks.

Young Hale had no desire to acquire an unnecessary soaking. His wife had held increased the pace of the roan gelding, not to get out of town, but to reach Knowles' Tavern as soon as possible. Like Jonathan and most of the people of Winnet, the innkeeper was a Puritan, who maintained an orderly establishment. Grandfather Hale would not object if Jonathan took shelter at the hostelry for the hour or so that the storm would probably last.

The first drops of rain were spitting on Hale's black and wide-brimmed conical hat as he rode into the Knowles' courtyard. "Duck inside, Master Jonathan!" A grinning stableboy met the rider and reached for the slackened reins. "I'll be pouring bucketfuls in about a minute!"

Knowles, the innkeeper, was shutting the windows against the storm when Hale entered the building. "Greetings, Jonathan," nodded toward the door he was aware of his awkward length of limb, his great feet and large hands.

Rain and wind met him at the threshold, driving him back indoors. Jonathan returned to his table. "Master Knowles," he called, "bring me something to eat and prepare a room for me. It appears that this rain will continue indefinitely." Though he started later, Jonathan finished his meal sooner than did the occupants of the other table, since conversation and laughter engaged his neighbors as equally as bread and fowl. The gray-eyed girl, Jonathan could not help overhearing, was named Anne, and the other girl was addressed as Estelle. The man Denys was black haired and as small in body as his two feminine companions. What was he to Mistress Anne? There was no trace of resemblance between his features and either those of Anne or the older Estelle.

ALONE in his room later, Jonathan pulled a chair beside the small, square window and sat watching the wash of water down the eaves. He was reluctant to retire, anxious for the storm to abate so he could ride on to the farm where Thomas Hale, his grandfather, and Faith Meade, the motherless girl who lived with them, were awaiting his return.

This might be the last thunder storm Jonathan Hale would witness in England. A week hence would see him on the high seas, married to Faith, bound for America with his

"What right have you to put on airs with me, wench?"

Knowles. "Spring must be here at last. This is the first thunderstorm of the year."

THE rain was drumming against the stout walls and roof. Thunder boomed and the gloom of the public room was lessened by a whitish glare visible through the interstices of the ossements. At that brief flash of illumination Jonathan saw that others beside himself had sought refuge from the unleashed elements. A man and two women were seated at the table nearest the unlighted fireplace.

The room brightened as Knowles applied the taper to the successive candles. Once again the shadowy trio at the other table took on sharper outline. One woman was seated with her back to Jonathan, cutting off his view of the other girl, but the man was placed where young Hale could observe him without hindrance.

They were, it was obvious, people of quality. The man's garments were of satin breeches, silken hose and fine linens were a sharp contrast to Jonathan's dull homespun and leather. And the clothes of the two women—lace, jewels and more silks—no Puritan maid or matron in Winnet had ever seen, much less worn on her beheld.

JONATHAN HALE had just returned from Southampton, a town of some consequence, but even in that populous seaport the young country man had never gazed upon people like these—creatures from another world. They must be from London, against which Grandfather Hale fulminated as a city of sin destined to share the fate of Sodom and Gomorrah.

Knowles was at the table now, setting down a great platter heaped with chicken and bowls of vegetables. "Will there be anything else, Miss Jamieson?" he inquired, glancing at the girl whom Jonathan had not yet seen.

She smiled as she shook her head at Knowles. The movement turned her face toward Jonathan and the young Puritan was unaware that he was holding his breath in amazement.

The beauty of Mistress Jamieson was stunning. Every detail of her features was perfect—the oval of gold in her brown hair, her eyes were a deep gray; her skin, from brow to where her throat disappeared into a foam of lace, was a smooth white; her lips a rich, soft red.

Hale found his breath in a deep inhalation. She must be a great lady, this Mistress Jamieson—the daughter of some nobleman, one who moved freely in and out of the court of King Charles.

ALL at once Hale realized that his almost rosy stare had attracted the attention of the girl. Her gray eyes turned in his direction and he dropped his gaze. Even with lowered head he was conscious of her glare; his cheek began to burn uncomfortably and he rose abruptly, catching up his hat and cloak. As he strode wife and grandfather, to begin a new life in a new land.

Already Jonathan could see himself there, a stout house constructed of the wilderness logs felled by his own ax, corn growing between the stumps of a widening area of cleared land. He saw himself homebound about at eventide, eager for the kiss and the welcoming arms of his wife . . . whose hair was both red and brown in the light of the setting sun.

Jonathan's head came up with a start. Faith Meade's hair was a colorless blond, with no trace of red. And the woman, who was visualized in the doorway of his cabin had been slim and graceful, whereas Faith was—well, buxom, to put it mildly. Jonathan rubbed his eyes. He could have sworn that a sound, not unlike thunder, had broken into what must have been a dream.

It came again like a remembered echo, a dull reverberation that lifted Jonathan from his chair and sent him tiptoeing across the room. That sound had been the thumping of a fist against the panel of a door. Not his door, but the door of some other room in the inn.

Softly he unbarred the door. The hall was in darkness, but another door, situated diagonally beyond the first, was ajar, opening at that same time allowed a yellow rectangle of light to fall on the floor.

"HE light rested squarely upon a man whose height was accentuated by a plumed hat, a tall man dressed in black, dressed more elaborately than even Monsieur Denys.

There were other men in the hall, shadowy forms that shuffled back out of sight beyond the candlelight. But the tall man made no attempt to hide himself. The arched plume dipped under the bow he had made to the robed figure that had answered his knocking.

"Good evening, Mistress Anne!" The voice was low, purring, yet Jonathan sensed the mocking, bitter quality that underlay the attempted gentleness. The speaker's eyes were deep set and the fleshlessness of his face gave prominence to a long, bony nose, harsh jaws and high-ringed lips.

"You!" Anne Jamieson's gray eyes widened, then narrowed in anger. "Why do you pounce on my door at this unseemly hour, sir?"

The tall man smiled. "The moth must follow the flame, my dear. Surely you do not expect me to remain in London when you are elsewhere?"

Anne's lips tightened. "You are mad, my lord, to come here. Haven't I made it clear that I desire neither your jewels nor the doubtful honor you would bestow upon me?"

The bony face twitched under the scornful words. "What right have you to put on airs with me, wench?"

With that he moved past her into the room.

Your Boys And Girls On Active Service

(By Ottawa Observer)

IT'S a little early yet to start getting the low-down on what the individual Army lads have been doing while awaiting the Swastika over in Sicily or watching the jumping Japs vanishing from Korea, but when the information starts to trickle out from official sources you'll hear about it and surely be proud of them. However, there's plenty of stuff coming right now about your boys in the Air Force and the Navy and what a wonderful job they're doing, and those from the towns, villages and farms won't take a back seat to anyone. For instance, there's someone well-known up and down the British Columbia coastline, now Lt.-Commander "Bill" Dolmage, who in the past two years has helped to send more than a hundred stranded or disabled ships back to sea, including a Nazi U-boat which fell into British hands. His salvage experience is thought highly of in the Royal Canadian Navy.

LAC Walter Melvin of Webb, Sask., was just a farm boy, had no thought of war or heroics a couple of years ago, yet here he is mentioned for grabbing a refueling tender that caught on fire while refueling a plane overseas. He drove it out of danger's reach, back to the base, and then lit the fire, without thought of personal risk to himself. Back in this country to take a pilot's course is he's just been awarded a bar to his D.F.C. The Navy girls, better known as "Wrens," have been given an increased scale of pay on both basic and trades as of July 1st, and that means extra pay for cooks, laundresses and bakers. Thrilled and how, were the R.C.A.F. girls who recently landed in England to do their bit in the land they have heard so much about. They represented every province of the Dominion, including 80 Alice Trotter of Little Current, Ont.; LA Jacqueline Paynter of Westbrooke, B.C. and Corp. Evelyn Hanseth of Kamloops, B.C.

Royal Roads, the Canadian naval college on Vancouver Island is a magnificent estate, formerly owned by a Canadian coal baron, and is a grand place to train. A few of the cadets recently selected for entrance were Thos. B. Hebert of Vernon, B.C., D. C. Mather of Tuxedo, Manitoba, L. D. Brander of Wainwright, Ont., and R. J. Dickinson, Comox, B.C.

But he felt like being on a tractor over a stoney field, did Sgt. Jim Frame of the R.C.A.F. who hails from the little town of Senate, Sask. Jim was on a 4-motored bomber piloted by PO Gordon Bennett of Winnipeg, which really got slugged white over the Ruhr, but which got back to its English base after eight incendiaries had hit it, and minus lights, petrol gauges, electrical system and hydraulics. Here's a funny one—Lieut. Johnny Loaring, R.C.N.V.R., star of the British Empire Games and Berlin Olympics, a survivor of the H.M.S. "Fiji" off Crete, tripped on a brick during an air raid on London and sprained an ankle. Johnny hails from Windsor, but is well-known to sports fans all over Canada. Lt. William J. McKay, R.C.N.V.R., from Enderbury, N.B., was the fellow who got plenty of praise when the R.C.N. sub-chasing launch picked up Greek survivors from a torpedoed ship. He got plenty of orchids in broken English, the story states. Strathroy, Ont., comes into our picture, when a home town Canadian, Lieut. E. A. Campbell, B.A. Camp performed a successful appendectomy operation in the day cabin of a buccing destroyer at sea, and also shows the comfort that are young men are still younger. Norwegian Women Post-War Problems

More Than One Thousand Escaped To Britain To Find Refuge

More than a thousand Norwegian women, representing every section of Norway's national life, have escaped since the Germans overran their country in 1940. Some fitted readily into war jobs, but many needed training, and for them the Norwegian Government in Great Britain set up a system of education. From this embryo, the Norwegian Women's Auxiliary Corps has taken shape; and many of these women are now trained in nursing, ambulance and truck driving, office, kitchen, mess and canteen work. In addition, some of the women are being given full army training.

Prosperity Cannot Be Achieved By Acts of Parliament

All these plans to achieve Paradise by legislation leave a number of persons cold. The programs are interesting, especially the ones that look forward to the two-hour day and the six-hour week. The rest of the time is to be spent in leisure. One of these days some chap is going to come along and suggest that the cure for post-war problems is employment at reasonable hours and decent wages. That man will not be popular with all the theorists who figure that prosperity can be achieved by Acts of Parliament instead of by acts of men.—W. L. Clark in the Windsor Star. 2532
